SCRATCH COMPUTER PROGRAMMING

Scratch is a visual programming language created by MIT that is aimed towards elementary school kids and higher. In our Scratch Programming class students will learn fundamental programming concepts such as variables, loops, conditional statements, and event handling while having fun. Students do not need any prior coding or Scratch experience; however they should be comfortable using a computer, browser, and standard computer operations. It is highly recommended that students have a proficiency in their current math course at school. Students are required to have a valid email address to save their work. By the end of the course, students will be able to build highly functioning animations with Scratch.
